

ABSTRACT

A device which includes an electronically controllable drop ejector adapted to be in communication with an electrochemical cell. The electronically
5 controllable drop ejector conveys measured quantities of a chemical composition capable of oxidative reaction together with other associated compositions into the electrochemical cell.